

BAO

Bao only said a few words such as Daddy, Mommy, Grandma and some other family member's names. People just said he had a language delay until he went to kindergarten. His teacher there said he didn't say anything in class and that his pronunciation was not clear. I took my son to the doctor for a hearing test. He was identified with bilateral hearing loss.

After that, I brought my son to Thuan An Center where the teachers have received training from the Global Foundation For Children With Hearing Loss. At the beginning he had two therapy sessions per week. I got guidance from the Global Foundation professionals in my approach to teaching my son. After a year, his vocabulary developed to 200 words. I was glad that he now knew many things.

The happiest thing to me is he developed a lot. I sincerely thank all the Global Foundation For Children With Hearing Loss professionals and Thuan An Center teachers and sisters who have helped him progress (happy tears).
